DON'T ALLOW YOURSELF TO THINK
—THAT THE—
BALDWIN
Dry-Air Refrigerator
Is an ordinary one, similar to those sold by other dealers. They differ from them in the most important points. They have no zinc lining in the provision room. Refrigerators are lined with zinc because their faulty construction makes it necessary, the air in them being so damp that they would swell and warp out of shape if they were not lined. The presence of zinc lining is a practical confession of its unfitness for a receptacle for food.
L. M. Bingham, M. D., Surgeon General, Vt., says:
"There is as much danger from keeping food in ill-constructed refrigerators, as from sewer gas entering inside the dwelling."
Every cost but little more than others.

"One Swallow Makes Not
Summer" says the poet. One swallow, if it was laden in the lightning generating precincts of New Jersey, creates quite a "heated term," though, it is said. However it may be, it is generally conceded that Summer is booked for an early visit, and we wish to remind gentlemen who have not placed their orders for FINE CLOTHING to measure, suitable for the season, that we can show them some fine goods to select from, at low prices. STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

A smart North Auburn girl is reported, who has walked six miles a day to and from the school house where she has successfully taught a twelve weeks' term of school this spring. She says that she has enjoyed every day of it.

Mr Clayton Record, of Salem, Mass., the well known violinist whom Auburn is proud to claim, is at home in Auburn on a short visit. Mr. Record is the owner of one of the most valuable violins in this country—a Maggini—valued at $3,000. The instrument is 205 years old, authentically. With his brother, Mr Delton Record, the clarinetist, Mr. R. will spend the summer at Old Orchard.

Street commissioner Goss, of Auburn, estimates that it will cost the city of Auburn from $1,200 to $1,500 to put its miles of roads and streets in as good a condition as they were before the rains of Monday and Tuesday. The heavy rains dissolved the oil into earth, clogging them, and on the country roads the work of the road machines will have to be done over again in many places.

Aroostook.

Gen G. Hersey, Esq., of Houlton, will deliver the oration at the celebration of the Fourth, at Hodgdon, says the Pioneer.

A man named McLellan, while handling a revolver last Monday, at Mrs. Fitzgerald's, Houlton, near the boundary line, received a dangerous wound, the bullet entering the front abdomen, taking an oblique course toward the left hip and lodging against the bone. The Pioneer reports the wounded man rapidly recovering.

Buildings are going up rapidly in Bridgewater, and there is a good demand for house lots in that vicinity. Mr. C. P. Church is preparing to build several houses to rent to some of his men. He had 1,500 sides of leather ready to ship, last week.

Mr. Aaron Conley, of Bridgewater, while at work in the woods in that vicinity, recently, routed a bear to which he gave chase. He soon after succeeded in killing Bruin. This is the first bear, which has been killed in this place.

Cumberland.

The house of Mrs. N. H. Wood, in Windham, was struck by lightning, Monday, and badly damaged. No one was hurt. The lightning tore off the oil and threw it into the pasture, but didn't set the house on fire. Loss about $750.

In the case of Francois Thiotte, who was killed on the Ogdensburg road, the coroner's jury rendered a verdict that no blame attaches to the road, but that some arrangement should be made for the protection of life at the Cumberland Mills crossing.

In the United States court, Judge Webb made a decision, awarding damage to the amount of $392 66 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of Solon S. Andrews, of Biddeford, against the schooner Satellite, Capt. Addison. The owners of the schooner will probably enter an appeal.

In the single scull race between Frank Buckley and Bernard Sweeney, of the Cumberland Rowing Association, which was rowed in the harbor on Tuesday evening, for the Pabo medal, the race was won by Bernard Sweeney, by one length. Time, 11m. 55 s. The distance was 1½ miles, with a turn.

The Lapen mills of S. D. Warren & Co., Westbrook, were shut down for four days during encampment week, but proved to be the place of great activity both night and day, in the way of repairs, during all the time. In these mills is made the paper for the Century, St Nicholas and the Youth's Companion. More than one hundred tons of paper is used, each month, in one of these publications.

It is understood that the Portland Fourth of July committee will offer for their programme for the celebration, next Saturday, the customary salutes and bell ringing at sunrise, noon and sunset. There will be exercises at three o'clock at City Hall, where Rev. Dr. Hill will deliver an oration, Mr. George C. Burgess read the Declaration of Independence, and Shaw's double quartette furnish music. There will be concerts at Deering's Oaks at three P. M., and Lincoln Park at eight P. M. The Fourth of July committee consists of Aldermen Prince and Sawyer, Councilmen Carndy, Small and Briggs.

Hancock.

The grangers of North Castine, are going to celebrate the glorious Fourth by a picnic at the North Castine camp ground, says the Gazette.

Kennebec.

A boy named Charles Catlin, of Augusta, fell head foremost into a hole fifteen feet deep, between the sidewalk and a wall near the Maine Central station and was not discovered until ten minutes after. When taken out he was insensible and his face was badly cut. He is now fast recovering.

Louis Belanger, residing in Lewiston, was taken to the Insane Hospital, Tuesday, in the custody of Deputy Marshal O'Brien of that city. His movements were restricted by a harness, as when his limbs were free he was very violent.

The directors of the Edwards Manufacturing Company held a meeting in Boston, Monday, and declared a dividend of 2½ per cent. for the past six months. The mill in Augusta has probably given better returns during the first half of the year than any similar property in New England.

Shortly after noon on Friday, June 26th, fire was discovered coming from the roof of Mr. Simpson's house on the North road, Readfield. They got out most of the furniture, also saved most of the windows, doors, and blinds. The house and connecting buildings were burned to the ground. There was no insurance on the same for $800.

The Salvation Army has withdrawn its suit against the mayor and city marshal of Augusta to recover the value of the drums seized, and which could not be found, Tuesday. Mayor Weeks gave the army permission to parade the streets with drums Wednesday afternoon and Thursday evening of this week. The Army have been obliged to give up their place of meeting in the dooryard on the east side, the residents in the vicinity objecting to their noise. The Methodist society have given them the use of their church vestry for meetings.

Knox.

At a special meeting of the Rockland Board of Aldermen, Friday evening, the mayor was authorized to draw his order on the city treasurer for the following named sums to be taken from the school fund. Teachers' salaries, $3,210; janitor's salaries, $615.50.

Mrs. Mary A. Mank, of Rockland, died very suddenly, Wednesday. The lady, who was somewhat advanced in years, was at home with her daughter. For some purpose or other Mrs. Mank went out into the cook-room. Sometime after the lady left the room the daughter went out to the cook-room and found her mother on the floor apparently lifeless. Help was summoned, but was of no avail as the body was already cold.

The heavy rains of the past two days have given the new Rockland water company more water than they could comfortably care for so that work has been discontinued until the flood subsides. Trenches have been begun on Park street and pipe distributed. From Park street they will go to Pleasant, Holmes and Ocean streets, where six-inch pipe will be laid. One hundred men now constitute the working force. Two and a half miles of pipe have been laid. It will require about forty miles in all. Schooner Ella Rose arrived Saturday from Philadelphia, Atlantic Portland with a cargo of ten inch pipe and special castings, crooks, corners, Tees and crosses. Wages have not changed and men are plenty.

Lincoln.

A Californian has been received in Bath of a fiendish outrage and nearly a murder, which was committed, last Friday night, between eight and nine o'clock, in Georgetown, upon an old man named Beals and his housekeeper by an unknown man. They were sitting in their kitchen when the door was suddenly opened and the lamp smashed over and extinguished by a cudgel thrown at it. The old gentleman was then pounced upon and severely beaten and received several cuts on the face and his entire upper lip was cut off. The old lady was also badly bruised and injured. After the scoundrel had finished the dreadful work, he departed without taking anything from the house, and nothing concerning him has been discovered. A doctor attended Mr. Beals, and Tuesday he was quite comfortable. The object of the assault is not known, but many think the intent was murder. Mr Beals is over sixty-six years of age, and is reported to be quite rich. He is a respected citizen, and the vicinity where he resides is named Jerusalem in his honor.

Washington.

A new bell was hung in the new Methodist church at Millbridge, June 25th, says the Union.

A Congregational parish was recently reorganized at Robbinston, with the following officers: Fred A. Buck, Clerk, Wm. C. Muse, Treasurer; Cyrus Balkam, Frank Leach and James Lamb, Assessors; C. B. Albee and James McCleary brought in the drive of six million from Salmon Stream to the main river in forty days. This is a difficult drive and was accomplished in about twenty days less time than the average, considering the dry spring was a very successful work. They had at one time eighty men, an average of sixty men during the time; had but one rain and that slight. The logs were taken through five lakes and four dams, a distance of about thirty miles. It is the first time that so large a quantity of logs have been taken from the headquarters of Machias river, as logs having been added to the drive after leaving Silk Lake all but 600 M of which was cut in from Township 30 by Holway, Sullivan & Co.

York.

Sanford has decided to celebrate, Saturday. The Sanford Cadet Band tendered their services for the occasion.

The Biddeford school board, Monday evening, voted that the office of Superintendent of Schools be declared vacant, and the salary attached to it cease at the expiration of fifteen days from date.

Mrs. Murray, of South Berwick, over eighty-five years of age, dropped dead at the residence of her niece, Mrs. John Quincy, Sunday morning. She was in apparent good health up to the time of her death.

Mate Wallace of the schooner Cora S. Vaughlen, and a deck hand named John Johnson, came to blows as the vessel was lying at a Saco wharf, Monday. The mate struck Johnson in the face, cutting his lips and bruising the flesh about his eyes and inflicting other injuries. The mate was arrested on a civil process and the matter was settled by the payment of $20.

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr. All communications intended for publication should be addressed to Editor of Whig and Courier.

FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1885.

It is amusing to hear Harris M. Plaisted talk about men feeding at the public crib. That is a topic the ex-Governor should let severely alone.

Gubernatorial Candidate Forsker says that he is a protectionist, has no disposition to evade the question, and will talk tariff on the stump during the Ohio canvass.

The coolness with which the New York appointments have been received by the Democratic journals of that city causes a feeling of uneasiness in the councils of the party.

The New York Herald is able to extract the following very mild consolation from the appointment of Collector Hedden:

"It may be at least said of the new Collector is not a Mugwump. Moreover his father attended law with Alex. Hamilton."

The thirtieth of June was the date fixed by Gen. Black for the retirement of Miss Sweet from the Chicago pension office. Miss Sweet still holds the fort, however, and the Democratic Commissioner is nursing his wrath.

Under the present reform regime, which is so much admired by the truly good Mugwump, a graduate of the work house, when convicted of petty larceny, has been appointed Commissioner of Public Buildings in Cincinnati. Turn the rascals in.

It is now thought that Gov. Hoadly of Ohio will be forced to accept renomination at the hands of the Democrats. The Democratic gubernatorial material in that State is not very numerous this year, so the chances of success on their part do very seem.

Ex-Gov. Plaisted confidently remarks in his paper that his partner, Col. Morrill, will be appointed postmaster at Augusta. The ex-Governor talks as though he carried the Administration in his pocket, but it is barely possible that the President may again take occasion to snub his presumptuousness.

It is stated that the celebrated confidential letter of Postmaster General Vilas instructing Democratic Congressmen how to get offensive partisans out of office will be brought before the Senate. This offensive partisanship scheme will undoubtedly be thoroughly ventilated before the session is over.

The Mugwump papers are enthusiastic recently because it is said they allege the President refused to appoint a party hack to office, but the memoirs of his Cabinet are not so particular about seeing charged with partisanship. They have all provided for their sisters, cousins and aunts, and Secretary Lamar has just appointed his son-in-law stenographer and private secretary to fill a vacancy.

Remarking upon Mr. Vilas's system of diverting fire charges against postmasters, the Memphis Avalanche (Dem.) observes frankly and forcibly that "the offensive partisan business begets an offensive mugwump law, defective service by a mean, dirty, low set of instruments in party, and that it is the sneak, the coward, the dodging hypocrite."

There is no doubt the Administration hope to purchase the wrath of the Fusion party Brewers by the appointment of Hon. W. Dorsheimer as United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, and Gen. McMahon as Marshal for the same district. The Tammany leaders perform receipt, the reflection however on the strength of the appointments and there is blood on the moon. Messrs. Root and Erhardt, who were removed, have been efficient officers, and the change was made solely for political purposes.

The New York evening organ which did not stop at Mugwumpery, but went clean over to Democracy, says the Philadelphia Press, has been trying to prove of late that the old border slave states furnished a remarkably large number of soldiers to the Union army. If this be the case, it has been accomplished by Mr. Cleveland's doing not honor some of these ex-Union soldiers with office, but grants all his favors to ex-rebels in the Southern States. The more pertinent question might be asked of the New York organ why the Administration is deemed necessary by the North or States even to have had thousands of Union soldiers and appoint to office ex-Confederate guard of Libby prison, as has just been done in Edwardsville, Ill. A number of the Union prisoners who were confined in Libby reside in the same town, but their appetites cannot be of disposition to give them any office. Can the New York organ solve the mundane?

A remarkable story of the inside history of the appointment of Collector Hedden is circulated to the Boston Traveller correspondent by a gentleman well known in the highest circles of the Democratic party, and who vouches for its authenticity. Said he: "The Treasury Department is not controlled by the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Lamar is a Democrat, and he is not controlled by Mr. Dorman

The National Encampment—A Woman Tossed up in a Blanket

PHILADELPHIA July 2 There was a disturbance at the National Encampment in Fairmount Park last night, which resulted in one of the visiting veterans being tossed in a blanket Some of the Kentucky boys were singing the seventy six stanzas of the number in the book A woman in the crowd of bystanders was tossed in the blanket and had her clothes torn from her Some of the boys tossed her in the blanket and tossed her nearly half a dozen times before the fun ended When the policemen reached the spot it was impossible to identify the participants After a while she was tossed out of the blanket and ran off Some of the Indianapolis Sentinels said that the woman was one of a party of Knights of Columbus and proceeded to arrest him

It is certainly a case of mistaken identity and as the park police insisted on arresting Curtis in his indignation he drew his sword The militia men rushed forward to prevent his arrest and he was called on the citizens to help him and great confusion prevailed Finally Curtis submitted to the authority of the police He was taken to the station house and afterwards held in $600 for the charge of assault with intent to kill Other lines created a great whole of the affair

THE CHICAGO RAILROAD STRIKE

No Cars Run Yesterday—Their Places Supplied by Carryalls and Express Wagons

CHICAGO July 2 The West Division Street Car Co has made no attempt to run out any of its cars since the serious encounter on Madison street yesterday afternoon The officers of the Company have had several consultations with the Mayor and Chief of Police, but without any apparent result

The News and Inter Ocean while expressing supreme dislike to the methods employed by the street car company in the past toward the public, enjoying as it does a complete monopoly of the passenger carrying trade in the most populous district of the city, say it should be granted absolute protection for its employees to enable it to carry out that failure to afford such protection may result in anarchy.

The Street Car Company officials declare that they have an ample force of men to run their cars when they are insured protection from assault In the meantime practically every city in the State has been pressed into service for the accommodation of the west side travelling public and beyond the discomfort which naturally follows the mounting of ordinary express wagon having plain pine boards for seats, the public is not in any way inconvenienced Several meetings of citizens have been held to protest against the delay of the Street Car Company in resuming car service Legal proceedings have been threatened to compel a forfeiture of the company's charter under the provision which compels the company to run its cars daily

Up to 2.30 this afternoon the Street Car Company had made no effort to move cars and the situation remained unchanged

CONFEDERATE COINAGE

Gold and Silver Amounting to $1 365 210 50 Coined by the Rebels in the New Orleans Mint of Which There is no Official Record

NEW ORLEANS, July 1 A morning paper contains the statement that over 81,000,000 have been coined in the New Orleans Mint of which there is no official record The coinage act of 1873 made it the duty of the Director of the Mint to have general supervision of all United States mints and assay offices The first director acting under that law was Hon H R Linderman, and in his report on the subject he gives statistics of the coinage in the several mints, showing the total amounts and denominations of the money made at each place for each year of the existence The New Orleans Mint was opened for business in 1838. Subsequently money of every denomination was made there

The Director's statement is brought down to January 31, 1861, up to which time there had been a total coinage of $40,148,710 in gold and $20,764,353 in silver, making the grand total at the New Orleans Mint, from its beginning in 1838 to January 31, 1861, in both silver and gold, of $60,914,063. The date at which the director's report closed was the date at which the Mint fell into the hands of the Confederates Documents lately brought to light, it is stated, show that subsequent to the mint going into the hands of the Louisianians and Confederates, and up to May 26th of the same year, there were coined $251,000 in gold double eagles and $1,101,210 50 in silver half dollars, thus making a total coinage of $1,365,210 50 while the mint was in the enemy's hands

What was done with the money does not appear from any available records but the fact of the coinage is stated is shown on the books of the coiner at that time and in order to make up the true amount of actual coinage of the New Orleans Mint this sum must be taken into account There was no regular coinage of the precious metals into confederate specie under confederate auspices, although the New Orleans Mint remained in their control until April 20, 1862, when the city was taken by the federal forces.

A Poor Girl's Romance.

It was by the merest accident that Albert Miramon lounged idly into Zion Sunday School that summer morning. By a coincidence, Helen Macy played the organ and sang for the children. Her voice wakened the echoes, and went ringing through the trees about Zion Church, thrilling as I sweet

Miramon lifted his lazy blue eyes in surprise at hearing such a voice in that place. But he saw only an arrangement of dark back hair, surmounted by a "cute" little bonnet, a head very gracefully poised on firmly knit shoulders. But there is a good deal of individuality in a woman's back hair. Albert Miramon got to thinking about it, and making guessing pictures of the face in front of it. He was so deep down in this occupation that he gave a start when the girl struck a long, rolling, joyous chord upon the little organ, and began to sing "The Sweet By-and-by." He could not quite account for it, but her voice seemed to say to him as plain as day

"Sing, too, you sing, too."

There was a preliminary hem-hawing in the throats of the third dozen species, little and big, in Zion Church, as they prepared to "pitch the tune." But they had no sooner get started than with one accord even with the words "By faith we shall see it afar" still in their mouths they craned their necks and made great eyes at the owner of the rich baritone voice that was so unexpectedly helping out with the Sunday School singing.

The voices, her's and his, sang so marvelously that the rest of the three dozen stopped piping their own lays to listen with great ears. Hers was a mezzo-soprano, powerful and sweet, and it had been exquisitely cultivated. The two voices blended in a rapturous harmony. They sang only to each other as they rose and fell in the thrilling, joyful refrain

"In the sweet by and by,
We shall meet on that beautiful shore."

It was not proper, perhaps, it certainly was not devotional, but the instant the word "share" died away on her soft scarlet lips, Helen Macy curved her beautiful neck to see who that other singer was. She turned her dark, calm eyes, and met the glance of a slender, fashionable, half-foolish looking young man.

He wore a tiger-eye scarf-pin, and a gray necktie with pearls & blue polka-dots in it. A flush illuminated her cheek, and she dropped her eyes. She wondered if he was one of those horrid commercial travelers. But on the way home from Sunday School, she remarked to Lottie Lovella Wilson

"There was a young man at the church to-day who sings nearly as well as your brother Ben."

What a sly designing young woman she was!

"He don't belong around here," said Lottie Lovella. "He's from the city, and is staying at Mr. Wilson's."

Meanwhile Miramon says to young Clarence Andrew Jackson Bushnell

"Say—by the way, one of your Zion girls sings very well, the one that played the organ."

"Her?" replied Clarence Andrew Jackson. "That aint no Zion girl. That was town gal, Helen Macy. She's a 'bonnie' over to Wilson's."

Next day

Helen Macy sits beside the spring, underneath the willows in Wilson's meadow. Young man, graceful and very swell, but trying to look unconscious, approaches. He lifts his hat with superlative grace. It is a handsome head, the wearer, and he takes to show it off. He says

"Pardon—Miss Macy, I think—but did you happen to leave a copy of 'Hand and Long' lying anywhere about under the trees here?"

Helen looked up

"Did you think you lost it here?"

"I think it was," said he, forgetful of grammar, chicanery and propriety.

Helen sadly:

"Yes" she said "what you must be mistaken."

Now, he had not lost any book at all.

"Well, perhaps, I am," he replied. "And yet, I don't think I am. Young girl Zion Sunday School yesterday morning, didn't you, Miss Macy?"

"Yes," said Helen. "You did yourself, didn't you?"

"I tried," he answered, with true hypocritical modesty. "But I can't begin to sing as well as Ike Wilson."

Helen laughed. Then she mused. Who cared whether she talked to a strange young man or not? Not a soul, she thought, with some bitterness. She was quite able to take care of herself, and proud of it. But, somehow, in that flush of introspection, the girl's lonely independence did not look to her so admirable and beautiful a thing as it did sometimes. Well, it was no matter. He seemed a gentleman. He might prove a pleasant acquaintance in this stupid country spot.

They talked lightly of this, that and the other. They became better acquainted in half an hour than many persons would have been in a month. At length Helen said

"Miss Macy," said the young man, simply, "I'm a stranger. Albert Miramon. I am not much credit to my family, perhaps, but I never did anything to disgrace it. I think. They used to call my father Governor Miramon."

And the Miramon House, on the Avenue, was that named for your father, asked Helen.

"Not for me, but for my father. I'm not old enough to have a house named for me."

Helen was looking meditatively at the toe of her pretty little beaded bronze slipper. How pretty she was, how well she looked, and how exactly she looked the thorough lady, from head to foot.

"And I've told me who you were, but you don't know anything about me," she said.

He smiled at the absurdity of it

"I don't need to know. I like you for granted."

"Perhaps you'd better not," she said.

For answer, he smiled again and looked in her eyes in a way that men have. It is a startling way and dismayed Helen Macy. Also, for the second time, his glance brought a flush to her transparent rose cheek.

Helen Macy prided herself on being a "cut-of-the-world" young woman. It was the want to be so that she should get to sleep any time within five minutes after her head touched a pillow. But next morning the sun peeped from a cozy nap to her wide-open blinking eyes, and smiled.

As for Albert Miramon, that night he threw off his coat and his highly fashionable shoes, too fashionable for comfortable tramping, alas! Then he stretched his tired back, balanced his feet upon the window sill, and sat so, half the night, smoking. The thoughts that revolved and twined with the smoke, and with it scattered into air, were like this. How would it seem, a legal home, with a lady in it who had to unspool bills, checks and liquid, dark eyes? A wife like that, in short. He felt the blood rise warm about his ears at the thought of the word "wife." To slang to that exquisite voice, to put him as all the masculine gender like to be petted, to cuddle down beside him and talk books—to talk everything, in fact. If he ever had a wife, he should not want a fool. Helen Macy seemed to know about everything he's most interested in. She was a woman of superior intelligency.

How would the touch of her hand upon a fellow's forehead feel? He had admired the beauty of her hand. It was not the soft, pudgy, pudding kind, the kind that stocks to one's fingers, but white, slender and firm-looking.

"Shows good blood," said my gentle aunt to himself.

They sang together again at the Zion Sunday School, and this time certainly the two voices sang only to each other. Music draws young hearts together, old ones, too, sometimes it is to be feared.

There were other meetings at Wilson's spring. There were walks and calls at Wilson's farmhouse, and rides. If Miramon wondered at first that his lady had no chaperone, not even a maid with her, he soon forgot all about it in the new, sweet day by day.

"But she's very stiffish," he was obliged to confess to himself.

One evening, as they sat in Wilson's porch, he said to her

"I can't make you out. You show me sometimes a deep-hearted tenderness to all living creatures. Yet again you talk like a disappointed old politician of sixty, who hated the human race."

"I did, sometimes," she said, very gravely.

"Oh, no, you don't. Only, if I didn't know you so well, I should fancy that you had had a cruel and bitter experience with the world, such experience as a girl could not have."

"Yes," she repeated, "if you didn't know me so well."

She was sarcastic and half-tender to him by turns. But he could not have told whether she cared for him—no, not if his life had depended on it.
